

Discussion Guide: Lydia Muñoz

“Making God in Our Image”

Reflect

- Early in her talk, Lydia asks the provocative question: “When was the last time you heard a hymn about divorce at church?” Describe your reaction to this question. How did it make you feel? What did it make you aware of?
- Imagine you were asked to write a worship song based on your actual life experiences, whether joyful or painful. What would your song be about? How do you think it would be received by your community?
- Lydia addresses the corporate church’s idolatry of “whiteness,” which she claims is not the same thing as “being white.” How do you understand the difference between “whiteness” and “being white”?

Respond

- Lydia suggests that Christians are often invited to distance themselves from their physical bodies. Why might this be problematic? What happens when we neglect physical senses and experiences in our thoughts about what we consider acceptable parts of faith and worship?
- Lydia claims that an individual cannot engage in authentic worship while being told to silence their truth. Describe a time when you have seen a faith community make space for truth-telling using the arts, story-telling, or activism. How was this meaningful to you? What other ideas did it inspire in you about how truth-telling can be part of your spirituality?
